Joiner, on behalf of the Association, then presented the Past President with a traveling case, as a small token of the esteem in which he was held by Local No. 53. Mr. Bagley, in responding, thanked the members of Local No. 53 for their kindness and also for their assistance to him during the number of years he had held the office of President. He also remarked that he had been in Calgary for a long time, and could remember the time not very long ago, when the few musicians who were in Calgary at that time, were in the habit of playing for ice cream. He was pleased to see that they were now playing for something more substancial, and hoped the Local would continue to grow in the future as it had done since it was formed. The remainder of the evening was spent demolishing some ginger beer anr other things which the committee had so thoughtfully provided.

On May 8 Local No. 109 held a concert and ball in the State Armory, which is the largest building in Western Massachusetts, and it was the most successful event ever held by the Local, and one of the most successful ever held in the city, there being about 1,500 people present, which was the largest assemblage held in the Armory since the dedication of the building.

An orchestral concert was given by an orchestra of 40 pieces, which afterwards furnished music for the waltzes on the dance program. A brass band of 30 pieces furnished the music for the two-steps.

With the admission at a popular price and with an advance sale of tickets that was not very large, we made a net profit of $490, which will be used as a maintenance fund for our Local headquarters, which the local has recently engaged.

Local No. 112, Joplin, Mo.

Delegate Wm. R. Snoeberger, submitted the following reports of the proceedings of the Omaha convention upon his return:

The seventeenth annual convention of the American Federation of Musicians has passed into history. Another milestone marks the progress of this great organization, which broadens, year by year, not only in numbers and power, but in liberality of thought and strength and earnestness of purpose. One fact prominently brought out during this session of the delegates was that, whatever differences of opinion may exist (and they are numerous) regarding the many perplexing situations that confront the various locals comprising the A. F. of M., the whole thought and is to so adjust and overcome such difficult problems as not to inflict a shadow of wrong on one another; in other words, the trend of thought and action is to a closer affiliation between the locals and between the individual membership itself.

From Joplin to Omaha is not a great distance, yet in the 350 miles or so of country traversed, it would be hard to find a better average. Notwithstanding the backward and unfavorable spring, the crops are looking pretty good—more especially in the "blue grass region," northeast of Kansas City. A short visit was made in this "Missouri mule country." It is somewhat out of the direct route from Kansas City to Omaha, but the view of the country and visits with the good Missouri folks around Lathrop, Kearney and other towns was well worth the extra time and trip. Lathrop is one of the main shipping points for the Missouri mule. Monster stables and pens are to be seen in every direction from Lathrop. Here it was that, during the Boer war, the English government stationed some army officers to buy up Missouri "Mocking birds" to sing the death knell of Boer independence. With the English officers was a bunch of Hindus, enlisted in the English army as mule drivers and general utility men. The tales told by the villagers of the doings of these dusky men were a delight to the mind and a joy to the memory. "Tommy Atkins, Sr., with his red coat (and face) and imperious manner, came in for a share of humorous comment. However, the fact was not lost sight of by the people of the favored region of great Missouri, that "Johnny Bull" created a mighty good market for one of the chief products of this State, and relations between the villagers and the officers and their odd recruits were amicable, not to say cordial.

All the way up from Lathrop through St. Joe to Omaha, about the same good country lines the railroad right of way. Along the banks of the "Big Muddy" the effects of the ravages of the late high water are plainly visible. Yet the people, with characteristic energy, are hard at work removing the traces of the flood and preparing against another. At one place on the Burlington, as it nears Council Bluffs, the seething current has eaten away a vast slice of land, coming perilously near the tracks. A large crew of men are at work repairing the damage. It is said that sixty or seventy box cars, loaded with stone, have already been dumped into the abyss, with no other effect than to cause a few bubbles to rise to the surface of the water and bring from the face of the "Old Missou" a derisive ripple of sardonic mirth, as it sullenly heaves and rumbles along its erratic course to the Mississippi. There is something sinister in the appearance of the vast river, and its yellow, turbulent curent holds a menace to the dwellers along its banks, and presents an everlasting problem to the guardians of the fertile farm lands adjoining.

Omaha was reached on Sunday evening; and a warm welcome was given the delegates. The Omaha musicians are a live, clever bunch, and all the delegates were made to feel at home, and the first greetings held forth promise of the good times for the rest of the week, which promise was verified to the fullest extent.

A little difficulty was experienced on account of one of the hotels failing to keep its agreement with the arrangements committee. However, this was soon overcome, and extra effort was made to insure the comfort of the delegates, for which I, for one, hereby express appreciation.

At 2:00 p. m. Monday, May 27, President Weber called the convention to order, and the seventeenth annual convention was under way. Hearty welcome to the delegates was given by Mayor Dahlman, and other city officials. Delegate Oleson, of Omaha, introduced the speakers, and took occasion to notify the convention that he and the other members of the arrangements committee intended to make good the promises held forth at Atlanta last year when Delegates Oleson and Smith worked so hard to secure this year's meet at Omaha. Subsequent events proved that he meant what he said, and the Omaha musicians, and citizens, too, did make good. Mayor Dahlman was complimentary in his remarks, and his welcome lacked nothing in heartiness—even assuring the delegates that the city was theirs for as long as they wished to stay, and that no ubiquitous officer of the law would be allowed to interfere with the meanderings of any delegate (whose brain was perhaps "dizied" by the press of business) in search of his temporary abode. So well was this promise carried out, that but one lone policeman—in appearance similar to our Tim Graney—was observed on the busy streets of Omaha during convention week. What penalty the commissioners have meted out to this lone blue-coat for technically violating the mayor's promise, is yet to be learned.

The words of welcome aforesaid were answered in a fitting manner by President Jos. N. Weber, ad after the report ofthe credentials committee, the President appointed the various committees and business began in earnest. Resolutions began to pour in thick and fast, and it was soon apparent that this was to be one of the biggest conventions ever held by the A. F. of M. Just a word in regard to the newspapers. It is a lamentable fact that the reporters of the daily papers did not waste much effort to get facts of convention proceedings and persisted in giving garbled accounts thereof—making a particularly strong play on "insurgency" which they imagined existed in the ranks against present officers of the A. F. of M. A very slight inquiry on the part of the said reporters would have disabused their "minds" of a wrong impression. In fact, exactly the opposite of "insurgency" was the fact of the case. A more heartfelt and enthusiastic endorsement of the administration of officers of the A. F. of M. could not well be imagined—and so far as my humble ability can judge it is well merited—and, indeed, no expression of appreciation, however strongly made, can ever repay the men who devote the best of their lives to the cause of this organization—and this, too, from entirely worthy motives. Enough of this: Reporters as a class are "good Indians," but in this matter they were sadly at sea, and more dreadfully "lost" than any "good Indian" ever was known to be.

Many resolutions, seeking to remedy the vexed problem of universal membership, were introduced, and the whole matter was referred to the National Executive Board, to be reported on at the next convention. The general trend of thought seems to be toward a more liberal law in regard to this point.

The various committees got to work at once on their duties, and by holding night sessions, succeeded in making reports at an early date, thus facilitating the progress of the session. On Thursday afternoon the greater part of the session was devoted to memorial services, in honor of the heroic band of musicians that went down with the Titanic. Appropriate speeches were made, which touched the hearts of all, and lifted the minds of all hearers to realms of sublime setniment, and the heartfelt appreciation, that, in these days of materialistic progress, there yet remains superhuman courage and fortitude; and the aptitude of all people to justly appraise and commemorate the martyred dead.

The convention unanimously adopted resolutions on the Titanic disaster and also passed unanimously a motion to subscribe liberally to the fund for the widows and orphans of the Titanic musicians; and to the fund for a tablet commemorating the deeds of heroism performed by Americans on that ill-fated vessel.

The Canadian delegates were there in force, and they are sure a live bunch. They landed the convention for Toronto next year—and here's a bet that they will make the delegates that may be fortunate enough to attend, feel thoroughly at home, and that the delegates will look in vain for any "dividing line" between the U. S. and the Dominion, so far as the A. F. of M. is concerned.

One afternoon was devoted to pleasantry, at Lake Manawa, where good music was enjoyed, and lunch partaken of; and the delegates improved the opportunity to get better acquainted. A remark is in order here regarding the delegates. They are sure a fine bunch—no "high-brows" among them; even the "Big Dogs" forgot to growl. Many pleasant memories will linger in the minds of all delegates and friendships are renewed and more strongly cemented each succeeding convention. The new delegates are always made welcome by the old "wheel-horses," which augurs well for the future of the Federation. The balance of the week was put in at hard work—the last day, particularly, being exceptionally crowded with work. A vast amount of business was transacted by this convention and if the succeeding conventions proceed on the same energetic lines as the one just passed, the future worth and rapid progress of the Federation are assured facts.

With the exception of a few district officers the officers of 1911 were all elected for the ensuing term. My good friend "Parson Perry is a member of the Typographical Union, and will make a first-class officer. There was no contest on the offices of President, Vice-Presidents and Treasurer, and the contest for the office of Secretary could hardly be called a contest, as Owen Miller had a walk-away. As remarked before, no "insurgency" was apparent, except in "pipe-dreams," and it was apparent that the Federation is not so far gone in judgment as to remove the pilot from the helm in the midst of progress into the uncharted realms of future success.

Sunday morning, June 2, the delegate arrived home to the best town in the world, which has never yet lost anything by comparison with other places visited. In looking back over the week's work, I wish to express appreciation to the Omaha musicans for their grand entertainment. I can never forget the kindly and fraternal spirit that all the delegates exhibited toward one another. I wish to impress on the minds of all organized workmen that the A. F. of M. is ever working for the cause, not only for its immediate membership, but for all affiliated and kindred organizations. There is a bright future ahead of the A. F. of M., and this convention did nothing to dim the lustre—rather widened the opportunities. Pleasant memories will ever linger with me, and a feeling of a work well done and much good accomplished; even though in so small a measure by myself—yet with the satisfaction that once more, through the courtesy of Local 112, I have been permitted to lend a hand to the onward movement of union labor, expressed in this instance through the great A. F. of M.

With kindly remembrances to the delegates and officers of the seventeenth annual convention, and renewed greetings to the "home town" bunch, I will close this crude review of the convention just passed.

WM. R. SNOEBERGER.

The annual memorial service of Local No. 134 was held Sunday, June 30, beginning with a parade from Central Labor Hall, on West Third street to Lave View Cemetery early in the afternoon. There were about seventy men in line, including the 13th Separate Company Band, the Moose Military Band, and members of the Jamestown and Warren Unions, and the bands played funeral marches on the way to the cemetery.

Just as the procession reached the cemetery rain began to fall heavily and it became necessary to hold the memorial exercises in the cemetery chapel instead of out of doors, as had been originally planned. Leonard Barth called the assemblage to order and explained the purpose of the gathering, after which the 13th Separate Company Band played Nearer My God to Thee. The roll of the dead was called and Rev. Dr. George C. Moor, pastor of the First Baptist church, gave the memorial address, taking occasion to refer in a feeling manner to the bandsmen of the Titanic who played as the ship went down. The exercises were concluded wtih the band playing "Abide With Me."

The graves of the following departed musicians were decorated, the date of death being given in each case: Daniel P. Westcott, 1868; Claude B. Wescott, 1898; A. E. The musicians of this city held memorial services on Sunday April 28 in memory of that gallant band of musicians playing that soothing and soul inspiring hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee, who went down with the steamer Titanic.

The services were held at St. John's Episcopal Chirch, and were opened with the orchestra playing Chopin's Funeral March, followed by a hymn by the choir. Dr. R. D. Roller, of the Episcopal Church, assited by Rev. J. M. Waddell, made a beautiful address and paid a high tribute to all of those dead heroes. A very appropriate ending to the services was the singing by the choir, accompanied by the whole audience, "Nearer My God to Thee"—the last strains that came floating from the sinking vessel, and which gave heart and hope in the hereafter to those despairing souls.

The church, which has a large seating capacity, was filled to overflowing, and numbers were turned back from the doors. The orchestra, composed of about fifteen pieces, was led by Mr. Harry Beckeustein, and the choir by Prof. Francis. The various bands of the city massed in one large band, under the leadership of E. E. McClure, escorted the members from their hall in the Odd Fellows' Building to the church.

Other numbers on the program that deserve special mention are Miss Caroline Pollock, who sang a solo, and the Mason Quartet..

We, the members of Local No. 279, were pleased to know that our President, Bro. H. Wooster, returned safe and sound from the convention at Omaha. It is not very often that we let him out of our sight, but on this special occasion we thought it quite safe, and from the briliant report and the smile he brought back, we knaw he had a god time and held his own, and left an impression with the brothers across the river that London is still alive and awake to everything for the good of the musical profession. We are also pleased to know that the convention is to be held in Toronto next year. Also in the near future we expect to put on our grand concert in behalf of the Titanic memorial fund.
